

BLACK GIRLS FILM CAMP

FINAL STORY MOUNTAIN: The Cure | DIRECTOR Aniyah, McNeill

INTRO	BUILD UP	CLIMAX	FIX UP	WRAP UP
Description: Introduces the main characters, setting, and the central situation of the story.	Description: Develops the conflict as events unfold and tension begins to rise.	Description: The turning point where the conflict reaches its most intense moment.	Description: Shows how the characters respond to the climax and begin resolving the conflict.	Description: Concludes the story by showing the final outcome and how things end for the characters.
We open to all black, white text scrolls up on the screen reading : It's 2075, climate change and government corruption has torn society apart. . Due to a huge increase in radiation, and heat, a new skin disease has emerged that only effects ppl w low melanin levels and theres been a secret operation to find a cure. We then watch Amayah, a 17 year old influencer, shes walking outside on a live stream. She's promoting a new electric fan created to combat the intense heat. A amber alert for a missing black girl named "Jameerah Scott" interrupts her livestream, she then rolls her eyes, swipes away, and goes back to her followers. She continues to talk as we see two men sneaking up behind her, the phone suddenly drops, a masked man	The girl next to her says "don't take the pill." (slowly and faintly) Before finally closing her eyes. She has no idea where she is but knows she needs to get out immediately. Suddenly 2 men storm in. They both force her to take a pill, then they grab one of the other girls, she pretends to swallow it by holding it in her teeth and waits until he leaves. She's starting to brainstorm ways to escape. Amayah uses friction to wiggle her way out of the tie. She runs to escape but the door is locked.	She searches for a key. She spots a box full of cell phones, she searches through the box until she finds her own. She tries to make a phone call but theres no service in the lab. She continues to look for a key and she see's a paper next to the box titled: Melanin extraction trials. It's full picture profiles of black girl influencers. She looks at first printed profile, zoom in on face, and flashback of first girl face carried out. She looks at next print out, zoom in on name..." Jameerah Scott", Flashback of Amber Alert with Jameerah Scott name and her swiping, flashback of the girl face saying dont take the pill, she look at the profile again and its Jameerah's face. She slowly looks at next profile and sees her face and hears foot steps. As they get closer she tries to wake Jameerah up but fails,	As soon as he leaves. She pulls out her phone and starts to take pictures of everything. She looks back at the box full of phones, finds a credit card in the back of a phone case. She uses the card to pop the door open. she slowly opens it, peaks out, then runs out the door.	It opens up to a live stream, instead of it being hers shes a guest with another famous influencer saying "I'm Karissa Green and I'm here with amayah edmondson, the 17 year old who took down a entire govt operation. tell s more about how you did that" amayah closes out with a heartfelt message about black girls and body ownership "black girls matter, our voices matter, our melan matters"
KEY QUESTIONS:	KEY QUESTIONS:	KEY QUESTIONS:	KEY QUESTIONS:	KEY QUESTIONS:
Who is the protagonist?	Who or what is standing in the way (the conflict)?	What specific event causes the protagonist to react?	How does the protagonist respond/react to the climax/event?	How has the protagonist changed from the beginning of the story?
Amayah is a 17 year old influencer. She's very self absorbed and dismissive	She's locked in the lab and does not have a key to help her get out.	She see's the files with all of the profiles of the missing girls and realizes the amber alert she ignored was for Jamirah, the girl who warned her about the pills. When she hears the footsteps she tries to wake her
What do they want?	What are the stakes?	How is this the turning point of the story?
	She must break out before the men return or she will be the next victim
	How is tension building?
Amayah transitions from wanting more attention, followers, and brand deals to wanting to escape and survive.	We realize that she's the last one left, making her even more desperate to escape. She's running out of time.	In the beginning Amayah is very self absorbed and doesn't care about what else is going on in the world, just her followers and views. Even when she finally broke free from the tie, she still tried to escape by herself without helping anybody. This is a turning point in the story because we finally see Amayah showing selflessness, which strongly connects to the ending	At the climax, Amayah responds by thinking strategically. Instead of panicking, she pretend to be unconscio to avoid being caught. This shows her growth from being reactive and self centered to being more calculated and determined to survive and expose the truth.	At the beginning, Amayah is self absorbed and disconnected. She prioritizes followers, brand deals, and online attention over real world issues. This is shown when her eye rolls at the amber alert for Jameerah and continues her livestream without concern. She only cares about visibility and validation. By the end of the story, Amayah transforms from a passive influencer trying to an advocate. Instead of using her platform for fame, she uses it to expose the operation and speak about Black Girls body autonomy and protection. She becomes selfless, aware, and socially responsible.